Academic Brand Style Guide

VERSION 2.0 | JULY 2019
This style guide is a living document, subject to change as the brand develops.
Welcome to the Thomas Jefferson University brand style guide

Powered by the legacies of Philadelphia University and Thomas Jefferson University, we have created a national comprehensive university, designed to address the evolving needs of higher education and our world. Along with this new era of possibility, comes a new look and voice for our academic brand.

The Jefferson brand is more than a name, a logo, a mascot, or school colors.

It’s what students, faculty, alumni, industry partners, peers and the public think, feel and respond to when they encounter anything and everything Jefferson. This document outlines the systems and communication elements that will help us execute that brand and ensure its strength, cohesiveness and consistency.

WHAT WE BELIEVE

The look of our academic brand has evolved, but the things we care about remain the same.

MISSION
We improve lives by providing students with exceptional value in 21st century professional education.

VISION
We are reimagining health, education and discovery to create unparalleled value.

VALUES
Put people first. Be bold and think differently. Do the right thing.
Academic Brand Architecture

With our exciting possibilities, comes a responsibility to our name. Given this new combination, it is important that how we reference our brand is consistent across all communication and materials.

Positioning

After extensive qualitative research, perception studies, alignment on strategic priorities, and review of quantitative research results, we established the following unique positioning statement and accompanying proof points to encapsulate Jefferson and serve as the point of reference for all brand efforts.

UNIQUE POSITIONING STATEMENT

Redefining Humanly Possible
Proof Points

CONSCIENTIOUS SOLUTIONS SEEKERS
We are a community of focused, driven and skilled individuals who see infinite opportunities that stem from collaboration.

CONDITIONED FOR THE UNCONDITIONAL
It’s not just what we do, but how we do it. Our process prepares faculty and student leaders for industry changes, while giving them the tools to lead the change.

HISTORICALLY FORWARD-THINKING
We have a legacy of visionary, yet purposeful change, and will always pursue meaningful progress in new and sometimes unexpected ways.

WE IMPROVE LIVES
Our motivation stems from the idea that each of us can make a positive impact on individuals, communities and our society—with our single common goal: enhancing lives.
Tone

Our tone is the personality of our brand. It is how we talk and how we are perceived by our audiences. Depending on the goal of our communication and its intended audience, certain tone words will be more relevant and therefore should play a heavier role in the personality of the piece.

TONE WORDS

VISIONARY – As in pioneering but not pretentious

CEREBRAL – As in analytical and intuitive but not lofty or highbrow

EMPATHETIC – As in humane and understanding but not overly sensitive or affectionate

APPROACHABLE – As in honest and transparent but not over-familiar

FOCUSED – As in resilient but not obsessive

CONNECTED – As in cohesive and committed but not inseparable

DRIVEN – As in ambitious and persistent but not inflexible or hardheaded
Our Academic Brand

LOGO COMPONENTS

REQUIRED DONOR ACKNOWLEDGMENT LINE

The required Sidney Kimmel Donor Acknowledgment Line brands the nexus of Jefferson and the medical college, and acknowledges the generous gift. All communication, in whatever form, from Jefferson shall include the line “Home of Sidney Kimmel Medical College” either with the logo as shown below or in another prominent location. To avoid consumer confusion, materials for individual colleges do not include this line.

LEGACY LOGO

In 2017, Philadelphia University and Thomas Jefferson University joined to become a single, comprehensive university. The lockup below is available for use when reference to the legacy institutions is desired.
Logo Color Options

People notice visuals before they ever read a word. That’s why it’s critical for our logo to always be used precisely and consistently. Below are the only acceptable color options. Select positive or reverse artwork for achieving the best contrast between the logo and background. Backgrounds include not only printed or applied color, but also colored paper stock, plastics, fabrics, or video.

1-color versions of the logo may be used only when reproduction methods will not allow for full color usage (e.g. silk-screen printing, embroidery, one- or two-color offset printing, etc).
Logo Configurations

Use of the logo requires approval by Brand Management. For information, please visit Jefferson.edu/Brand.

HORIZONTAL (PREFERRED)

This format is the standard for advertising, stationery and most communication.

!Horizontal Logo Example

VERTICAL SPECIALTY LOGO

For special use such as invitations, promotional gift items, displays, vertical banners, etc, a special vertical format was created.

!Vertical Logo Example
Clearspace

We must preserve the integrity of the Jefferson logo through legible size and adequate space around the logo.

Clearspace is the area surrounding a logo that must be kept clear of any text, graphic elements, page trim, etc. For the best visual impact, always allow for generous space around the logo. Minimum clearspace for the horizontal and vertical configurations is $\frac{1}{2}$ the width of the symbol as shown below.

Jefferson department, program, and entity names must not be placed in proximity to the logo so as to suggest that they are part of the logo lockup. If necessary to include, these names must be completely separate from the logo.

The name in the logo must never be repeated in the headline or other prominent feature of the piece.
DO NOT alter the color breaks of the logo

DO NOT use substitute colors

DO NOT create custom logos/brands

DO NOT use the shield symbol as a logo

DO NOT create a variation of the logo

DO NOT use the Full Color Positive logo on backgrounds other than white

DO NOT use the logo on backgrounds that do not provide proper contrast

DO NOT print the full color logo in black

DO NOT place additional text adjacent to the logo

DO NOT use a logo found online. EVERY use of a Jefferson trademark must be approved by Jefferson Brand Management. Visit Jefferson.edu/Brand.

Typography

The Thomas Jefferson University brand uses three main typefaces: GT Sectra Fine, GT Haptik and Museo Sans. All primary brand communication should utilize these three typefaces. For low visibility use, commonly available Georgia and Trebuchet may be used. These are not substitutes for the brand typefaces. Lato is the Jefferson typeface for web and other screen-based use.

Brand Theme

This theme is meant to animate our strategic positioning and capture the essence of our brand voice. Think of it as a declaration or rally cry, defining who we are and what we believe.

THEME

What if we didn’t just rely on the typical way forward? What if, rather than the vertical thinking that takes problems head-on, we could solve them with a radically different approach? That’s exactly what we do. We are crossing lines and connecting disciplines—redrawing limits and slicing through every standard and norm that exists—because that’s where the greatest human advancements are made. At the intersection of infinite combinations, deviations and amalgamations, we discover new possibilities for the world.
The Jefferson Voice

MESSAGING IS WHAT WE SAY, OUR VOICE IS HOW WE SAY IT.

Our university incorporates many great elements, and it is important that the way we talk about all of them happens through a single compelling voice. This voice is derived from our theme of creating new potential through unique collaborations and pairings. Essentially, the idea that where two points meet (two individuals, two skills, two values, two ideas etc.) unlimited possibilities are born.

With that in mind, our brand voice is full of optimism and creativity. It’s about showing our divergence from what is standard, but doing it in a way that others can relate to. We keep language simple, understanding that others are not experts in our fields, but we don’t resort to “dumbing it down.” So we tell our story with quiet confidence avoiding jargon at all costs.
Voice Toolkit

Copy should always be written through the brand voice while accounting for its intended audience. The following considerations will help guide our writing. Please note, all headlines and brand voice samples are meant to be examples only. All copy should be approved by the University marketing managers prior to being used in external marketing materials.

HEADLINE STYLES

A headline is our best opportunity to entice and engage with our audience. It’s important to intrigue but not be all-revealing so our audience has a reason to continue reading.

THE TRUTH HITS TWICE
This is our first headline style. These poignant statements are provocative and attention-grabbing on the surface, while carrying a deeper underlying meaning. Example:

“A University That’s Never Been Done” – Can be read as a new type of university or a university that is always pursuing new advancements.

CONFIDENCE IN THE UNCONVENTIONAL
This is our second headline style. These phrases exemplify how innovation is in our DNA, how we seek creativity, and are unafraid of being different because that’s how we create change. Examples:

“You Are The Breakthrough”
We don’t oversell or pander to prospective students. We reinforce their strengths with faith that our excellence will speak for itself.

“We Make Connections Few Think To Make”
While we should limit value comparisons to very rare circumstances, the focus should always be on the process behind the results rather than a pure “we’re #1” or “we’re better than” approach.
Copywriting

BODY COPY STYLE

Think like our professionals, speak like our audiences. We use short sentences, without flowery introductions or lengthy asides.

For architects, business people, designers, engineers, health care professionals and scientists, process is everything. So, our body copy should describe the thought behind the work, hitting what matters to the audience and leaving out technical nuances or jargon.

Examples:

“As entrepreneurs and researchers find practical common threads or therapists and future lawyers reshape modern healthcare, we are molding professional leaders with an industry edge unlike any other.”

“Wolff’s Law states that bones will adapt to the pressures under which they are placed. Meaning, over time, our bones will remodel themselves to become stronger under certain conditions. What if you applied that thinking to the design of a building or the chemical makeup of a vaccine?”

“Just as we were the first to establish an unprecedented education model—where hard science and soft science meet learning and training to mirror the professional world—firsts have always been a familiar part of our identity.”

MECHANICS

While we follow AP Style on principle, these are some additional considerations for our writing.

- When referring to ourselves on first reference, we use Thomas Jefferson University. After that, we’re on a first-name basis: Jefferson.

- When referring to us as the university, we capitalize the U in University.

- We move to a new paragraph or part of the communication if we’re changing subjects.

- We use a balance of words and images to keep things interesting.

- We sometimes use rhetorical questions to invite our audience into the conversation.

- We use “we,” “us,” and “our” when talking about our University or speaking to internal audiences.

- We reserve “you” for prospective students, peers and partners.

- We aim to keep our lists short, punchy and powerful.

- We use the em dash (—) without space on either side.
